

Lawrence
Klepinger

The Sovereign
Individual™

Hello!

My name is Lawrence Klepinger - but please call Larry.

Before I begin, I would like to invite readers to go to:

LawrenceKlepinger.com

Here you will find full information as to what this new newsletter/website/podcast is all about.

Our website is in the top 1% worldwide for people with special needs, speed and security. All visitors are welcome and people with hearing/reading challenges, as well as those who are totally sight impaired can enjoy our newsletter/website with comfort and ease.

Once these newsletters are filed in the Archive Section, readers will be able to access them, adjust the reading/hearing, to their own comfort and read/listen with no problems whatsoever.

In addition to these advanced additions, the website has been designated as one of the fastest sites to download on the Internet. And to top it all off, there are no passwords, no sign-in foolishness - and no subscription fee.

LawrenceKlepinger.com is completely FREE!

So, I invite you to go to the above website and see for yourself.

Now, on with the show.

It is our combined pleasure to welcome everyone, regardless of your race, religion, creed, color, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, and anything else you can think of to add to this list.

In other words, you are all welcome.

One caveat: We are a center/right website - but endeavor to present all our newsletter/podcasts in a fair and balanced manner.

THE UNITED STATES CONSTITUTION

Today, I would like to make just a few general observations regarding the United States Constitution - that so many people today seem to have overlooked.

Was the United States Constitution written perfectly in its inception?

Absolutely not.

Black slaves were not allowed to vote - and were not even considered human beings - but chattel.

Women were not allowed to vote at all.

But, most of all, American Indians were denied virtually every right, that the White men, who designed, developed and wrote the Constitution gave to themselves.

This is undeniable. All you need to do is read the Constitution.

BUT,

And, this is the point that people fail to acknowledge.

The Founding Fathers recognized their own fallibility as human beings.

Thus, they made a provision - in which the United States Constitution could be amended.

In doing so, they realized that, over time, customs and cultures change. They took this into account and made the Constitution to be able to be changed when the need arose.

Many people today just say the Constitution was written by “White Men” and is therefore inherently racist.

If that were the real situation - then the Framers of the Constitution would not have included an Amendment Process, by which the Written Constitution could actually be changed - legally.

When viewed from an historical perspective - this was an earth-shaking invention - that no other country had ever done before.

Thus, the Birth of the American Dream.

America was the first country to be built on a concept that all men (people) were created equal - at least in word.

And, as time passed, and as culture and customs changed - so did the Constitution change, exactly as the Founding Fathers had originally intended.

So a changing Constitution is in keeping with the Founding Fathers’ original intent.

They knew that they were not perfect - and made the amendment process - so as to correct mistakes that they might have made.

And the Constitution was amended. Blacks gained the right to vote. Women gained the right to vote. And American Indians now have the right to vote.

America was not perfect from the beginning. But, with regard to the constant drive of the American Dream, We the People, have made great strides in making America one of the greatest nations ever to be conceived through a DREAM, than any other country in the history of the world.

America desired no King. We the People wanted the freedom - the Right - to govern ourselves.

Now, in America, there are people of different ethnic backgrounds, in all sorts of positions of power throughout the country.

And in 2008, America elected its first American of African ancestry (note, I did not say African-American) to the highest office in the Land.

And then, reelected him again in 2012. And that was done with a WHITE majority of Americans inhabiting the United States of America. Needless to say, Barack Obama would never have been elected - if America were truly a “racist” country.

So, when people say America is a racist country they simply are not telling the truth.

Does America have a racist past? Of course it does. Show me a country that does not have an element of racism in its past. There is none to my knowledge.

Are there still racists in America. Of course there are - as with every other country in the world.

But, does that make America a racist nation?

Only a fool would answer “yes” to that question.

In closing, with this First Edition, I would like to point out why I did not refer to Barack Obama as an African-American.

The reason is simple.

Any designation as to national origin - before the word American - is a ploy of the Politically Correct Ilk. Their intent is to drive a wedge between every American, and pitting all of us against each other.

But, I choose to refer to people as Americans first, and then their ancestry, if they choose to be designated as such. Thus, Americans of African Ancestry.

I do not call myself a German-American. I am an American of German ancestry.

The same goes for Italians, Japanese, Chinese, and all other ethnic groups.

And, in truth, the only real Americans are the American Indians.

All the rest of us are Immigrants of Various Ancestries.

Thank you for taking the time to read this first edition.

I hope you decide to stay with us and enjoy this newsletter/podcast.

Best Wishes and Happy New Year!

Keep Thinking Positive!

Until next time, Sayonara from Kobe, Japan,

Lawrence Klepinger