President Trump Acquittal: Ramifications, Follow-up and Predictions

Preface: Again, I would like to thank the readers for their kind - and critical comments. Your time and consideration is very much appreciated.

Some readers told me they were having trouble with the sites not being able to be pulled up. My apologies on that. I will see if we can solve that problem in the very near future.

Other readers said that the Newsletters were too long. I realize that people are very busy, so I will try to make them shorter from now on.

I really appreciate those of you who let me know these problems. It is great to have such conscientious readers to take the time to help me out with this new project. Very much appreciated!

On with the show!

President Trump Acquittal: Ramifications, Follow-up and Predictions

President Trump is set to be acquitted of impeachment charges, sometime next week.

But it will get worse as the days go on. It is fairly obvious that the House of Representatives had their chance and they blew it. They have only themselves to blame, no one else.

However, the House, nor the Democrats, will accept blame. Instead, they are already organizing talking points directly related to this matter.

Predictions

The Democrats are seething with unbridled anger, however they are still trying to act as a cohesive unit.

With that in mind, I predict that the next State of the Union will be a very contentious one, in which many, if not all of the Democrats, will either interrupt Trump's speech with protests from the floor - or they might even walk out, en masse.

As for the Democratic Convention, I believe it will be a brokered convention and that the whole process will be thrown open to the floor.

What will the outcome be? I predict that Michelle Obama will emerge as the top candidate, to ride in at the last minute and rescue the Democratic Party from total ruin.

The reasons are many:

She is a highly respected woman of color. To Democrats, diversity and identity politics is what it is all about.

The Democrats desperately want to save Barack Obama's legacy.

Michelle Obama is a lawyer.

She was the First Lady for Eight Years thus, the Democrats can claim that she has experience.

She can also tout Barack Obama as her number one supporter and political confidant.

Together, Michelle and Barack Obama would be a formidable combination to run against President Trump - and possibly defeat him in the 2020 election.

Why the Mainstream Media has not pounced on this theory is beyond me - unless that is their actual game plan. Lay low, let the other people beat each other to a pulp, then go to the convention bloodied and bowed, and spring the whole scenario on the public, when they least expect it.

If the Mainstream Media start to talk about this concept too early, then the element of surprise would be eliminated.

The famous dictum of Sun-Tzu comes to mind:

Deception is nine-tenths of the battle.

Akira Kurosawa, the renowned Japanese filmmaker, once opined:

Nigen-wa Baka! (People are idiots).

In closing, I will repeat the quote that I used in Newsletter #5, just one more time, for effect:

What good fortune for the State that people do not think.

- Adolf Hitler

One final prediction, as to the new rally cry of the Republicans will be:

The House of Representatives Impeached Donald Trump. We the People re-elected him

President!

Have a good Super Bowl Sunday - and don't forget about the State of the Union.
That is it for now. Take care, stay safe and keep thinking positive.

Until next time, Sayonara from Kobe, Japan!
